The Industries of San Francisco.

The Census Office has issued a monograph on the statistics of manufacture of the most prominent cities of the United States, among them San Francisco. The number of manufacturing establishments in that city in the census year 1890 is given as 2,800, with a capital of $29,417,246. The average number of hands employed is as follows: Males above sixteen years of age, 21,591; females above fifteen years, 3,380; children and youths, 1,081; total amount of wages paid during the year, $1,395,010; value of materials used, $44,537,430; products, $71,613,385. The largest number of manufactories are engaged in making boots and shoes, there being 310 of these establishments, having a capital of $1,000,072, and employing 3,371 hands. There are 3,190 carpenter shops, employing 12,150 persons; 565 printing and publishing establishments, employing 1,887 men and having $1,744,755 capital; forty-seven tobacco and cigar establishments, employing 4,179 persons; 119 bread and cracker bakeries employing 213 men; 110 men's clothing factories and shops, employing 2,228 hands; fifty machinery establishments, employing 1,175 men; 118 painting and paper hanging concerns, employing 947 hands. There are eighty miscellaneous industries, having a capital of $4,545,700 and employing 1,386 hands, and producing products worth $181,350.

Gold and Silver Production.

A statistical abstract just issued by the Treasury Department contains statistics of the annual production of gold and silver in the United States from 1857 to 1891 inclusive. The figures show that the production of gold has declined from $55,000,000 in 1857 to $36,500,000 in 1891, and the production of silver has increased from nothing in 1857 to $42,000,000 in 1891. The total production of gold and silver for 1891 was $78,500,000, an increase of $3,000,000 over the year previous. The largest production recorded in any one year previous was in 1878, when over $96,000,000 were produced. The statistics of the production of gold and silver in California for 1891 is, gold, $19,000,000; silver, $870,000. In Nevada, gold, $2,700,000; silver, $8,860,000; Colorado, gold, $3,400,000; silver, $15,000,000; Oregon, gold, $1,000,000; silver, $80,000.

The Greenbackers.

The National Committee of the Greenback Labor party have promulgated an address to the American people, leveled against bank, railroad, telegraph, land and moneyed monopolies; it charges the Republican and Democratic parties with bad legislation in the extension of bank charters; it declares against national banks, high railway fares and telegraph tolls; in favor of land for actual settlers; for greenbacks and for a tariff in the interest of labor; for the right of labor to combine; for payment of the national debt and against refunding it.

A "Snake Up" Foreshadowed.

The New York Times Washington correspondent says it is rumored that the politicians are soon to be aroused by a "snake up" from New York City to Buffalo. It is impossible at present to ascertain whether the sweep of officers is to be so clean as to include all who are suspected of lukewarmness toward the Administration, or whether the Postoffice in New York is marked as one of the places which is to be reformed.

A British Captain Who will Appeal to the President.

Captain Thompson, of the British steamer Bothwell Castle, has been fined $9,000 by Judge Dundy, of the United States District Court, at Portland, for violation of the Passenger Act, in bringing from Hongkong 140 more Chinese passengers than allowed by the capacity of the steamer. He will appeal to President Arthur for a remittance of the fine.

Referring to Congressman Cassidy's statement that he shrank involuntarily from Guiteau's touch, the San Francisco Report says "Guiteau's hand must have been four acres to make the Congressman involuntarily shrink from it."

The Austin Reveille says that had Col. Shaw, after his lecture in Carson, invited all hands to drink, he would have seen a literal charge of a heavy brigade of three hundred scarlet tipped noses up to the bar.

The health of Senator Benjamin Hill, of Georgia, is much improved, and his physicians say there is strong hope of a cure, or at least that his life will be greatly prolonged.

SENATOR FAIR INTERVIEWED

On Various Topics of General and Special Interest.

New York, May 24.

Senator Fair, who is on a brief visit to this city, regards the passage of the new Chinese bill as a forerunner of renewed prosperity for California and the Pacific Coast States. He did not think that the beneficial results of this great measure would be immediately perceptible, but he was confident that it would be felt in the near future, when the Mongolian population on the coast began to thin out by emigration to Massachusetts and other Eastern States; that when the stream from Asia is stopped, as it will be within a few months, the Chinamen who remained will be compelled to compete with white labor under conditions vastly different from those which now prevail, and the change would be greatly to the advantage of the natives. "If there is anything that pleases me," said the Senator, with a mischievous smile, "it is to see people who love one another live together in harmony. There is always a sort of magnetism that brings such together, and I am more than gratified—I am overjoyed—to see that Chinamen and the good people of Massachusetts are so pleased with each other, and are getting along so fine. Yes, Massachusetts is the place for John, his friends and his relatives, and I pray that the tender attachment between them may prevail to such an extent that every mother's son of our coast contingent may join those who love them and contend in friendly accord together. They are both imitative, and there is no reason to doubt that when the Yankee State gets as many as we have got there will be pleasant times. They will build big mills, and they will fill factories and workshops, and every channel of industry, as they have in California. That is, I think they will. Of course," he said, smiling, "they won't interfere with white labor."

THE MINES.

On the subject of California mines, he said he had been unable lately to pay much attention to mines or mining operations, and could not express any opinion of the outlook in California and the adjacent States. Of one thing he was satisfied, and that was, that there were but few properties of real merit on the New York market. "The ravens of the West," he said, "have pounced down on the Eastern people, like turkeys on June bugs, and still they are fleeced. It is hard, but they have the remedy in their own hands."

A HIT AT WELLS DRURY.

Mr. Fair is in the enjoyment of robust health, and said he was much pleased with his life in Washington. He had been treated with great courtesy by newspaper men in the East, but their brethren of the Pacific Coast were, he said, "of a vastly different type. Out there," added the Senator, "if a reporter calls on you for an interview and fails, it is a matter of no consequence to him, as he will sit down and make up one all the same. The business has grown so disreputable that if a gentleman learns that a newspaper reporter is after him he locks his doors and shoots out the back door."

ANENT HIS PARTNER.

The Senator said it was not true, as reported, that Mr. Mackay, his partner, contemplates making New York his future home, and that he will build a city residence here that will eclipse that of Vanderbilt. On the contrary, Mackay will continue to reside in Nevada, where all his pecuniary interests are.

The Senator is accompanied to this city by his family, who will leave for San Francisco during the latter part of the week.

The Salmon Fisheries.

[S. F. Bulletin.]

Owing to a disagreement, three years ago, between the fishermen and canneries, no fish were caught for four weeks previous to the end of the fishing time, which extended the close season that much longer. The result of such extension was apparent in 1891 by the greatly increased run of the salmon in 1890 over ten million pounds of fish were caught, and in 1891 the catch was estimated to be over fifteen million pounds, an increase of 50 per cent. This year it is supposed there will be a larger increase. This is confirmatory of the wisdom evinced in the enactment of statutes guarding the fish during the close season. The Fish Commissioners have for ten years obtained statistics from the canneries of the quantities of fish caught. On the strength of this information the Fish Commissioners have been able to conduct their operations intelligently. The supply of fish has been so largely increased by these intelligent efforts that new canneries have been able to increase their capacity and product. It is just as necessary to the welfare of the canneries as it is for the guidance of the Fish Commission that all the information in the possession of canners and fishermen concerning the catch and movements of the salmon in the Sacramento river and its tributaries should be freely communicated to the Commissioners. The very existence of the canneries depends upon a proper and systematic continuance of the supply, which experience has proven must be artificially maintained.

Must be a Democratic Cow.

There is a funny story afloat about Jerry Moore lifting a cow out of the mud by her tail, and the beast showed her ingratitude by attacking her benefactor. The Enraka Leader states that this leads Col. Tom Taylor to remark that it must have been a Democratic cow, for she showed the same spirit that governs that party. Col. Taylor predicts that Col. Moore will discover the truth of this before he tramples long with his new political associates.

THE MOREY LETTER.

An Alleged Suppressed Interview with Garfield About It.

[Port Huron (Mich.) Commercial, March 20th.]

Mr. William H. Little, one of the officers of the Scripps Association of Newspapers, which publishes afternoon newspapers in Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, St. Louis and Cincinnati, was visiting his home in St. Clair last week. He tells a strange story about the Morey letter, which, as all newspaper readers will remember, was sprung upon the country just before the Presidential election. It committed Mr. Garfield positively, over his own signature, in favor of cheap Chinese labor, and created great excitement throughout the country in consequence. A paper in New York called Truth published a facsimile of the letter, and all Garfield's friends made haste to pronounce it a forgery. The supposed forger was arrested, and it was generally understood by the country finally that the letter was indeed a bold fraud, although it was never so declared by Mr. Garfield over his own signature.

Mr. Little, in conversation at the time of his visit, threw a good deal of light upon the incidents relating to the damaging letter that transpired at Garfield's home. Throughout the campaign Mr. Little was manager of the Cleveland Penny Press, one of the Scripps newspapers, and that paper made a specialty of news from Garfield's home at Mentor. The paper kept reporters there continually, and every available scrap of news was picked up and forwarded.

When the Morey letter came out Mr. Little promptly telegraphed to Mr. Garfield asking for a positive denial of its genuineness. Instead of sending it Mr. Garfield telegraphed a desire for an interview. Mr. Little sent a reporter, who was by Mr. Garfield requested to publish a denial of the genuineness of the letter, but to a request that Mr. Garfield would write a letter to that effect, Mr. Garfield refused to accede.

A COUNSEL AT MENTOR.

The next day Stanley Matthews and one or two other prominent friends of Mr. Garfield passed through Cleveland on the way to Mentor. Mr. Little, being certain that their mission related to the Morey letter, selected one of his reporters who was unknown at the Garfield mansion, and told him to follow those gentlemen there, and, without revealing his identity as a reporter, to discover, if possible, the incidents of their visit.

The reporter, in pursuit of this object, entered Garfield's parlor not long after the visiting statesmen. It is proper to explain that the house was open to the public almost without restriction. People came and went with as little ceremony as they would go into one of our city offices during business hours.

The gentlemen were busily engaged, as was expected, discussing the Morey letter. Stanley Matthews urged Mr. Garfield to write a letter positively denying it. Mr. Garfield declined, and gave his reasons frankly.

He said, in substance, that he was not in a position to deny it positively. He had come in, he said, the morning the letter was purported to have been written, and after being several days from home, and just after his election to the Senatorship. He found a large number of letters requiring his attention, and, assisted by his secretary, proceeded to reply to them. The work was done as rapidly as they could do it. The secretary's writing, Mr. Garfield said, was so much like his own that he could scarcely tell them apart. Therefore, it might be possible that in the hurry and excitement of the time he had either written or dictated the famous letter. At any rate, he was not sure enough that he had not, to venture upon the positive denial that his friends sought to have him make.

There was a great deal more than this in the interview, and the reporter had it all down in his mind, when Mr. Garfield turned and saw the stranger present. Walking up to him he asked his name and business, which the reporter promptly made known.

Mr. Garfield then gave him to understand that what he had heard was a strictly private conversation, not to be published under any circumstances. After a good deal of discussion the reporter left, and, returning to Cleveland, said the report before Mr. Little, but at the same time said he did not wish to have it published.

AN OBSTINATE REPORTER.

"Have you given any promise that it shall not be published?" asked Mr. Little.

The reporter said there had been no direct promise to that effect, but after what had been said he did not feel like publishing the article.

"But," said Mr. Little, "you were sent there under pay from this paper to get the report just as you did get it. It belongs to the paper and not to you."

The reporter still insisted that it could not be published, and, taking the manuscript he had written, put it in his pocket. Mr. Little, from memory—having read it over four or five times—wrote it out in the reporter's presence, and expressed his intention to print it.

Then the reporter said that if he did he himself would print a denial of the whole transaction. Mr. Little saw this would leave the paper in an awkward fix, but he went on and telegraphed to Garfield that he had the statement of the reporter, and that as it was a matter of great public interest he proposed to publish it. He asked Mr. Garfield to make any statement he chose in regard to it. To this telegram Mr. Garfield made no reply, but shortly after a prominent citizen of Cleveland came in, to whom Mr. Garfield had evidently telegraphed in relation to the matter. He protested against its publication, and as the reporter continued resolute in the position he had taken, Mr. Little could do was to discharge him from the employ of the paper and refrain from publishing the article.

From the fact that neither for newspaper reporters nor in response to the solicitations of his intimate political friends, would Mr. Garfield formally deny the Morey letter, Mr. Little feels very much inclined to believe that he wrote in the hasty manner that Garfield himself admitted that it may have been written.

While there was nothing personally dishonorable in Mr. Garfield's holding the opinions on the Chinese subject expressed by the letter, they would greatly have damaged his cause if they had gone undenied at the time. The truth now cannot either dishonor his memory or have political effect. After election, of course, the excitement died away, but the people were well convinced that the letter was a forgery. That this conviction sprang from the efforts of Mr. Garfield's friends than from his own act, is something that the public have a right to know. It is particularly important to the persons who were accused of the alleged forgery, that the inner history of the affair be understood, and it is a wonder that they have not taken steps long ago to bring it to light for their own vindication.

It is a significant fact that the author of the suppressed report was appointed to a Government clerkship not long after Mr. Garfield took his seat as President, and was in a way to obtain something of a good deal better if Mr. Guiteau had not stepped in with his shot that was heard around to world.

The Boston Wool Market.

Walter Brown & Co., of Boston, in their circular under date of May 13th, review the wool market as follows:

The wool market has been steady since our report a week ago, with a fair demand from manufacturers, and while we do not note any advance in the values of fine washed fleeces, there is a little stronger feeling on the part of dealers, in the belief that the new clip from Ohio, Michigan, etc., will be late this season, and that all the fleeces now in the markets will be wanted before any other is available. The demand continues to be limited to fine and the better medium grades of wool. Low medium and coarse are in but little request for the present wants of manufacturers. The prospects indicate quite clearly that the mills this season will run on goods requiring the finer grades of raw material, and these will probably meet with quick sales at satisfactory prices, while the low and coarse qualities will be neglected. The market is closely sold up on unwashed wool of the grades now in general use among manufacturers, and new clips, as they arrive, are quickly taken for consumption at full quotations. The reports from Kansas and other Western points mention the lighter condition of wools this year, and their averaging some pounds less to the fleece than they did last season. This falling off in the weight, in agrest measure, is probably due to the high price of grain during the past winter, causing the growers to feed less corn to their sheep than usual. Corn feeding in winter makes wool, but at the same time it makes yolk, and adds to the shrinkage of the wool when cleansed for working at the mill. Manufacturers buy all wools on an estimate of the cost clean, and in this respect are ready to give due credit to lots of superior character and will pay the value in the grease which the merits of an improved condition will warrant. The growers who consigned their clips to Eastern markets last year, were generally well satisfied with the result, and their wools are appreciated by consumers, who, while they do not care particularly where they buy their stock, provided it does not cost too high, at the same time expressed satisfaction in getting wools as direct from the producer as is practicable. They are disposed to encourage the system, and we believe that all growers who adopt this method of disposing of their clips will find that the result of a series of years will accrue to their advantage. Quotations, sales, etc.—California—Northern Spring, 30@34c; Southern Spring, 22@26c; Fall clip average grades 14@22c. Sales, Spring, 39, 200 lbs; Fall, 39,000 lb. Texas—Choice Northern, 29@32c; average, 26@20c; choice Western, 26@29c; average do, 24@26c. Sales, 50,000 lbs. The sales for the week as reported are: Domestic Fleece, etc., 1,217,100 lbs; Palled, 359,600 lbs; foreign, 395,500 lbs. Total sales, 1,972,200 lbs.

Another Donner Lake Sensation.

The Truckee Republican, of Wednesday, relates the following:

A rumor was current on the streets yesterday, that another man had been found drowned in Donner Lake, and on inquiry a Republican reporter gleaned the following, which gave rise to the rumor: It appears that Sunday last, J. M. Matthews, foreman at the new round house, his nine-year-old son and two men, were out boating on Donner Lake.

When near Echo rock, the little fellow who was leaning over the edge of the boat, suddenly cried out: "I see a man on the bottom." But little attention was paid to the matter at the time, but the boy kept insisting on what he saw.

He even went so far as to describe the dress and appearance of the man, even to a watch chain he said he saw in his vest pocket. On hearing of the above facts, Deputy Coroner Dauster took the boy up to the lake yesterday afternoon, with the intention of making a search, but the wind was blowing and the lake so rough that they were unable to accomplish anything. The spot was pointed out by the boy, and the first time the lake is smooth, a careful search will be made.

TOWN AND COUNTY.

Blakely & Stoddard have removed to their new quarters.

About a dozen Bodieites have arrived at Steamboat Springs intending to remain there a while and retort.

Despite the inclemency of the weather there was a large crowd out to the bon bon party at Kimball's hall last evening, and all agree that it was one of the most delightful dances ever given in Reno.

Dr. Webber has again assumed control of the Webber Lake Hotel, and will open the same about the first of July. The hotel is to be refurnished throughout, thoroughly renovated and otherwise improved.

Geo. M. Pinney, was a passenger on the west bound train last evening. Mr. Pinney is the man who created such an excitement in California political affairs a few years ago in connection with the disclosures at Mare Island.

Tom Barnett intends to give the people a benefit, no more nor less than a grand clearance sale of his immense stock of boots and shoes, furnishing goods, etc. The sale will commence on the 4th of June, and continue for ninety days.

Birth and Mystery.

Mary Jennison's Body Found.

The body of Mary Jennison, the eight year-old girl who was missed from Empire City two weeks ago, was found Wednesday in the Carson river near the Santiago mill.

Good-Bye John.

F. A. Bee, Chinese Consul, states that a number of Chinese are leaving San Francisco for the East, and that about seventy-five leave every day by the emigrant train.

The Storm.

The storm that set in Wednesday continued until yesterday noon, and the rain that fell was of great benefit to this section. It was just what our farmers prayed for. That the storm was a good one is attested by the fact that Peavine mountain is again covered with snow, as are also the hills west of town.

Fair Matters.

The Trustees of the State Agricultural Society held another meeting yesterday afternoon and fixed the date for holding the Fair from October 2d to the 7th, inclusive. They elected W. R. Chamberlain, C. C. Stevenson and H. L. Fish as an advisory committee. The next meeting will be held next Wednesday.

Union and Alta.

From the Virginia Chronicle of last evening we take the following:

This afternoon there was current a credited report that the northwest drift on the 2600 level of Union, about 60 feet north of winze No. 1, is in ore that is expected to mill about $30 a ton. It is improving as it goes north.

There was a report on C street this morning that Alta was flooded. This is not true. The water is easily handled by the pump and tanks.

Overland Bound West.

The following passengers passed Omaha on Wednesday, to arrive in Reno to-morrow evening: Theodore Sutton and wife, Philadelphia; T. W. Fitch, New York; Simon A. N. Spacker and family, Livermore, Cal.; Mrs. C. M. Sprague, Mrs. Eva Carpenter, Fredrick Carpenter, Cloud Carpenter, Saak Center, Minn.; Mrs. M. Hill, Little Rock, Ark.; M. C. Bano, Evansville, Ind.; R. R. Wallace, Erie, Pa.; J. G. Johnson, Eureka, Nev.; H. I. Teschler, San Francisco; F. J. Barnard and wife, Victoria, B. C.

Excursion Rates.

The Carson Tribune announces that "Sunday rates on the V. & T., and on the G. & C. as far as Dayton, have been reduced to half fare. Tickets will be sold at all the stations on the V. & T. from Virginia City to Reno at half price, good for the day only. Sunday tickets sold for Steamboat Springs and Reno will hold good for return by the passenger train on Monday morning. The half rates went into effect last Sunday, but this is the first newspaper notice of the fact.

Owing to the great number of tourists now arriving in California by the excursion facilities offered by the overland railroads, we may expect a heavy tourist travel from Truckee across Lake Tahoe via Benton's stages to Carson and Virginia returning to Reno.

We are informed that the same excursion rates from San Francisco, Sacramento, etc., to Carson and Virginia in existence last season will be adopted this year."

EFFIE ELLISER'S DREAM.

How the Actress Obtained Inspiration for the Creation of "Hazel Kirke."

Mr. O. G. Bernard, the manager of "Hazel Kirke," who has so ably guided it on its prosperous career, tells the following story: "Effie Elliser was playing Rosalind acceptably, and doing very little in Bartley Campbell's Heroine in Rags, when Steele Mackay wrote to her that Mr. Mallory wanted her to play Hazel Kirke. She was glad to accept the offer, and it was fortunate it was made to her, as she had not only achieved fame in the part, but had contributed materially to the success of the most beautiful and interesting of all domestic dramas. She leaped into instant popularity in the part, and thereby hangs a tale. The night she received the letter, she had a dream in which her father, John A. Elliser—who, by the way, is not dead, but actively managing theatres in Pittsburgh and Cleveland—appeared to her. He told her that now she had an opportunity to create something, and to make a name for herself. He told her it was a pure womanly woman, with all the virtues, graces and beauties of an unimpeachable member of her sex, that she was to play; it was a woman who might be made saintly among women, and that she should endeavor to let her own bright and angelic little soul shine out through her acting, so that the part would be inseparable from herself, and that when the name of Hazel Kirke was mentioned as the embodiment of all that is pure, womanly, bright and good in the women of the drama, the name of Effie Elliser might, at the same time, rise to their lips and make a new impression upon their hearts. Strange as it may seem, although she had no intimation of the character of the part she was to play, her father in this dream outlined every shade and color of the nature of Hazel Kirke, and when the book of the play was put into her hands she was astonished to find that it was the same identical Hazel Kirke as that of her dream. The fact so impressed her that she went body and soul to work to make the part as beautiful as she possibly could. How well she has succeeded, all who have seen the play know. She has made it so sweetly chaste and innocent that it is the admiration of every good woman in the land."

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

The June number is, as usual, noticeable for the amount, variety and excellence of the reading matter and illustrations. The opening article, by Archibald Forbes, the famous war correspondent, "The Melodramatic Aspects of the Franco-German War," with its fourteen illustrations, is a very able paper, and abounds with interesting facts. "Coffee" traces the berry from the plantation to the cup, and is fully illustrated. "Reminiscence of Service Among the Comanches," by an Old Army Officer; "The Delusions of Alchemy," "Longfellow," "Peasant Life in India," "A Piece of Amber," etc., etc. are prominent features of the number, contributed by popular writers. The serial, "The Letter 'S'; Or The Jocelyn Sin," is continued; and there are charming short stories, sketches, adventures, etc. etc., together with some exquisite poems, and a miscellany abounding with interest, entertainment and information. There are 128 quarto pages, over 100 illustrations, and for the frontispiece a beautiful picture in oil colors, "Kitty You're a Tease." The price is 25 cents a copy only; $3 a year, postpaid. Inclose 25 cents for a specimen copy, address Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.
